1. The Foreign Language Committee's Working Group on Education and Training met on November 14 for a preliminary discussion of the proposal to create a National Foundation for Foreign Language and International Studies. Members of the Working Group were positive about the purpose and objectives of the proposed national foundation. There are, however, important questions of strategy, timing, and tactics which need to be considered in order to bring this idea to reality. Such issues involve the American academic community and public as well as the Executive Branch. The task of developing grass roots support and building a national coalition would seem to be primarily the responsibility of the Association of American Universities and other interested private groups.

2. Within the Executive Branch, the Working Group noted the requirement in the conference report for the 1986 Higher Education Act amendments asking the Department of Education to study the proposal. Until this study is completed, it would appear unlikely that the Congress or the Administration will take a position on the national foundation. At an appropriate time it might be advisable for the Secretaries of Defense and State and, possibly, the Director of Central Intelligence, to inform the Secretary of Education of their interest in this project, to urge that the study be undertaken promptly, and to provide such assistance as they can.

3. The FLC Working Group on Machine Translation met on 18 November to review the progress made thus far in the development, under contract, of a Japanese Machine Assisted Translation (MAT) system.
